														09 January 2015 Dear Senator Feinstein, Senator Boxer, Representative Huffman: There is no single legislative, nor financial issue, which has caused our nation state more grief than the repeal of Glass-Stiegel during the Clinton Administration which had led to our financial collapse in 2008. The separation between banking and securities must be resolute. It chagrined me the other day to examine the contents of our safe deposit box and find there was a Securities broker in the branch of my wife's and my credit union. The notion deposits are being sent across the floor into mutual funds from savings is the behavior which the Roosevelt Administration meant to correct to protect savings and wages otherwise unprotected public to securities accounts. Credit Unions have enjoyed legislative and tax benefits to otherwise, being involved in the same business as money center banks as First Interstate, Citi-Corp, or Bank of America. Credit Unions should be subject to Dodd-Frank and their tax exempt charters be amended as they are in the same business as banks to products and services offered as a matter of practice. I welcome your thoughts to the issue. Thank you for your time. Best Regards, /s/ (b) (6)

Under any republican administration they favored the rich, and made them richer. The democrats were consistently for the working class, the average person trying to earn a living and take care of their family. This issue I know is not about politics and is not a democratic or republican issue. It is a people issue, the people on Main St. USA not Wall Street. We do not believe the FED needs to be audited, one only has to look at congress and the games they play to see if anyone needs an audit it is them. 				(b) (6)										It appears that the W.T.O. and N.A.F.T.A. have opened the flood gates of American jobs to low wage countries. In addition, there is a tariff imbalance between China and the United States! China puts a 25% (repeat) 25% tariff on our exports to China, but the U.S. puts only a 2.5% (repeat) 2.5% tariff on Chinese imports to the U.S.! A 10 to 1 tariff ratio against U.S. exports! Senator Dick Durban has written a 2010 proposal that would stop tax loop holes that currently out-source and in-source jobs to low wage countries My suggestion is for the President and the Republicans to work with Senator Dick Durban and his fellow senators on passing his 2010 proposal. We need to return to the days of fair trade, not free trade! Presently (as of 9-9-2014) we are at a GDP of 1.8%. During the Reagan and Clinton terms, our GDP was at 3.0%! Pat Buchanan stated that countries that practiced protectionism saw their GDP increase to 4 and 5%! It's time to PUT AMERICA BACK TO WORK, by returning foreign jobs back to the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA by lowering corporate tax rates to 19%, and then cancelling the W.T.O., N.A.F.T.A., C.A.F.T.A., and, T.P.P.! The corporate taxes could be waived only if the profits are re-invested in additional American jobs! In addition, the State of New York has started tax free zones to encourage corporations to locate to New York, with a successful response. I believe New York is a successful flag ship state for the other 49 states to follow!

6/12/2015 13:56	Board Members	NULL	NULL							Seattle	Washington	98105	UNITED STATES	I understand that Janet Yellen has spent decades studying labor markets. I do not understand why she has remained on the sidelines as the $15 Now minimum wage campaign is winning in multiple cities and soon to sweep the country. It is scary to consider - people who have worked hard to increase their compensation to $16-18 per hour by working hard and adding value will be demotivated and their employers will have less money for future increases. Given the lack of motivation that many younger members of the work force demonstrate (work ethic issues) - this problem will be exacerbated. With less motivation, we will lose productivity. Not the recipe for success. Companies will reduce hours for employees due to budget issues. Companies will push jobs overseas. On-shoring will stop and off-shoring will be the new trend (again). In Seattle, I believe Sawant (the primary instigator of 15Now) is actually motivated to help her home country by pushing up the USA minimum wage - which will drive more jobs and off-shoring to India. I think her agenda is driven by her desire to help India, not her concern for unskilled workers in the US. She knows that US minimum wage workers live a much more comfortable life that 90%+ of the India population. Please be the voice of reason in the public debate. The politicians are worried about votes and the corporate leaders are worried about losing customers. The Democrats are trying to secure votes....the USA needs you!

I worked factory jobs during the summer to pay for my college years. During one summer, my shift was 4pm to Midnight. The next summer was worse, Midnight to 8am. After obtaining my business degree, I worked only briefly at AC Nielsen, because I got drafted and then did a tour in VietNam. So anyway, eventually, I purchased a home & paid an 11% interest rate. Now that I am retired, the CD rate is less than 1%. That's not fair. That does not help me, or other retirees. BTW there are 56 million persons receiving social security benefits. Today's retirees built America and now they are being forgotten. Many retirees have maybe 50-100 thousand dollars saved. A 1 percent increase in the interest rate will give them an extra $10-20 per week. This would enable them to perhaps afford milk, or orange juice, vitamins, medicine, visits to their grandchildren and other needed essentials. This simple raise in the interest rates would unquestionably make life easier for workers and vets during their retirement years. And please, don't ask yourself what the pundits would think. JUST DO IT.

				(b) (6)										Paul described the Federal Reserve as an indispensable accessory to debt crime, setting artificially low interest rates that make it possible for politicians in Washington to spend vast amounts of money they don't have, without the public growing outraged over mounting debt interest costs. The true cost of borrowing all that money is hidden by what amounts to a government conspiracy against taxpayers - an "unholy alliance," as Paul puts it. When interest rates inevitably spring back to realistic levels, and the cost of debt service increases dramatically overnight, it will come as a horrifying shock to voters. but it will be far too late for them to do anything about it. "Because we have this enormous debt, the Federal Reserve has to accommodate it, and they do it by having low interest rates," Paul explained. "So imagine you have this enormous debt - whether it's $18 trillion, or $65 trillion, or over $100 trillion, there are a lot of different ways to measure it - imagine if interest rates go to five, or six, or ten. I remember getting out of high school, and they were 18 percent, back in the early 1980s." This means the Federal Reserve is working "hand in glove" with deficit spenders. "You can't have a big debt without the Fed," Paul said.

Yes, I know that rates are zero, I had to adjust my portfolio years ago when they were dropped in the first place. Now, as a result, I am entirely in US and European dividend paying stocks and am expecting to get spanked thanks to you guys. The real issue for me is why now. The American worker finally looks to be getting some bargaining power and the Fed is putting the kibosh on it. These guys have a whole lot of catching up to do for one. Also, last time I looked, inflation, thanks to the oil markets, looks to be quite low. Ahem, my social security check will not go up this year as a result. How-a-bonga guys, lets put this increase off ASAP so everyone can enjoy this resurgent economy. Not just Donald Trump et al. Thanks for your consideration.

Hope you do the same, and I'll be happy to lobby my United States Senators, and Representative to abolish your independence from Congressional approval to manage anything. Regards.

Such an increase will have an adverse impact on the stock market, housing market, and general consumer spending. The economy is still very shaky what with 50 million on food stamps, 90 million still out of work, and major stores closing their stores. Here in California alone, "Fresh and Easy" and "Haggen" have closed all of their stores, and Albertsons, a major grocer, sold off 144 of their stores last April,only to see their successors close their doors for good only months later. I could multiply examples but this gives you an idea how anemic this recovery has been. And we outside of the Beltway, know how misleading the government unemployment figures really are, leaving out the millions who have simply given up looking for work. We simply cannot afford to roll the dice at this point in time. In fact, I would not consider raising the interest rate until after the 2016 election unless you want to hand the presidency to Trump, Cruz, Carson, or some other of the Republican loonies. Thank you for your consideration. Respectfully, (b) (6)

After the announcement that they may raise rates, I saw the President's statement concerning increasing the min wage die to the better economy. An increase may not necessarily show a better economy, but I can see how a politician would persuade people by saying that. (On a side note, an increase of min wage would make so maybe people ineligible for food stamps, Medicaid and Welfare that it would save the taxpayers money, maybe sell republicans on that point???? And people would have the opportunity to have a better quality of life) I am so eager to hear the news that will affect all of us today. An increase in rates means higher prices for ALL products on the shelves. Businesses borrow money from , the amount the businesses borrow to create and package goods will cost more because they have to pay a higher interest back to the bank. In turn that increase will be passed to the struggling consumer. Yipes

My computer misbehaved, I do not like I devices. I'm sorry. I do think raising the interest rate is a bad idea. An interest rate hike does not reflect a good economy. I think the President may try to use that argument to increase min. wage. A better argument is to show the Republicans that it will save them money to increase the min wage, not personally but federally. The government would no longer have to pay for food stamps, Medicaid and for welfare services as people will be able to provide for themselves with an increase of min wage. It will afford people an opportunity to have a higher standard of living. An increase of an interest rate will not help the President make his argument. I pray you consider this. I also see the global economy as an entire whole connected with other countries, affecting not only our own but others as well. Globally, I think an increase of the rate will hurt the US too. May God direct you and guide you, give you wisdom. Remember sometimes the wisest thing to do is not to act. If you do raise the rates and disaster happens, you can always reduce them again despite the expected additional critics. Do what is good and helpful. Have faith in yourself. Thank you.

You say it is a sign of economic recovery, however where we are, we are still struggling. My son purchased a restaurant in NYC the year before the 2008 crash. His first year was great then the economy tanked. He has been struggling to stay afloat ever since while many restaurants around him went out of business. It has been very frightening. He can't even take a salary. If people don't have money to spend they don't go out to eat and restaurants fail. Every time he seemed to start to get ahead the Republicans shut down the government causing turmoil again and business dropped finding him having to pull himself up again. Now just when it seems like he might find some breathing room, you up the interest rates! We just can't catch a break! As a middle class American to me this means I have to watch my spending and use less credit. How is that going to help our economy when we are afraid to spend? You say it will create jobs? How many times have we heard that? Bush's tax cuts were supposed to do that. Where is the evidence that that happened? I get tired of hearing how jobs are going to be created every time a financial move is made which seems to be just talked to get us to buy into deceitful moves. How about letting our economy really recover before gouging us again. This may help big businesses but small ones like my son's are still struggling to recover.

Interestingly general Market rates like Treasuries, AA Bond rates in the short term has been decoupled. Since Banks can borrow at a rate related to the FFR it means lower profits for banks. Since they are unwilling or unable to pass along the cost it indicates they have no borrowers. By creating a market crash and making revaluation more likely the Feds actions themselves can precipitate an recession in a mediocre economy and facilitate a Republican election. Whatever your politics history shows that Republicans when in power do worse with the economy than democrats so I expect poor economic performance is not the Feds goal. This may be unwitting but further interest raising in a weak enconomy with .5 per cent inflation is a recipe for a crash

I could embarrass any Congressional Committee member to use $100,000. from any of them at a NO INTEREST premium for a period of a year, and have NO takers to my offer - which is what we small squirrels do in trying to find a safe place to store the rewards from gathering and storing for a rainy day! 5/13/2016 15:12	Board Members	NULL	NULL							Kenmore	Washington	98028	UNITED STATES	Dear FOMC, as I watch treasury bonds rally and stocks fall this week, I'm wondering if we can accelerate this process by trotting out Eric Rosengren to speak more forcefully about why the Fed needs to start hiking up interest rates more quickly. I believe historically that when the Fed was raising rates in the past and was expected to raise them further, long-term interest rates generally rose with short-term interest rates unless and until the markets began to anticipate that the Fed had gone too far. So, I'm wondering if it tells us anything when the 10-year yield is actually falling in response to Mr. Rosengren's recent comments. I greatly appreciate the people at the Fed taking the time to read my silly emails and respond, but what I would appreciate more is members of the FOMC being able to think outside their academic box, just as Ed Gramlich was able to in front of the 2008 housing crash, even though no one else at the Fed was listening to him. Everyone acknowledges the problem with income inequality in this country, and while this is purely anecdotal, I think it says something about underlying consumer confidence when Donald Trump and Bernie Sanders are getting the number of votes that they have in the recent presidential primaries. If the Fed then tries to destroy the consumer confidence of the middle and upper classes by crushing financial markets, how is it that the country will avoid another Fed-induced recession? Best, (b) (6)

The percentage of the work force that is employed is sliding downwards, irregardless of the misleading Unemployment Rate. If consumer spending falters, our economy will be in real trouble! Instead of just "not implementing a rate increase at this time", which is so anemically encouraging as to be useless, why not have a rate cut, or start up another round of Quantitative Easing? The plain fact is that another Recession will shake our country to it's core, and we haven't even recovered our optimism from before the Great Recession. Maybe you are too insulated in your office to have perceived how close we came to anarchy, in the midst of the Great Recession. You are so scared of Inflation. I understand this, having tried to calculate the interest on our National Debt if we had double-digit inflation. Disaster! You should also be scared of another Recession, because all our social institutions were badly strained by the Great Recession, and still have not recovered. There is such a thing as "The Public Trust", and it is currently shaky. Don't take my word for it! But please do check for yourselves. I see the emergence of Donald Trump and Bernie Sanders as a strong indicator of the underlying, seething dissatisfaction in our populace. Please consider this strongly in your decisions, I beg you!

One bad jobs report sends the U.S. Federal Reserve Board running like scared chickens. Now it's unrealistic fears of a BREXIT? Really? Next it will be a fart from President Obama that gives you people a reason to avoid doing a trivial rate hike. A 1/4 of 1 percent rate hike signals CONFIDENCE in the U.S. economic growth but no rate hike signals the Fed is a bunch of cowards who can easily be manipulated into doing nothing. The U.S. economy is being held back by your inaction and it's long overdue for the Fed to raise rates on a steady and predictable path. The Fed must restore confidence that it can actually do the job. Lord knows the rest of our politicians cannot do their jobs... which is why so many voters favor Trump for President. Thanks

I believe this would be a grave mistake. Every few months I'm having to replace one of my debit or credit cards because someone's hacked my bank, or some other vulnerable points where criminals collect financial digital data. Once my husband and I were in the UK, and our daughter was in China when our bank's credit & debit cards were suddenly deactivated. We found out our new replacement cards were sitting in our mailbox at home. Fortunately, my husband had brought an extra credit card, and our daughter was rescued by a couple, who helped her get to a hotel in Thailand where she was able to receive a replacement card. I learned from this the importance of having CASH with me. A 100% digital currency is a very very bad idea. There are far too many digitally talented thieves and dishonest waiters - and the problem's getting worse every day.

The FOMC is now "the problem" as markets get unclear signals from the Fed and idiots like Bullard don't help its credibility, which is now ZERO. Cannot even raise 1/4 or 1 percent? That's pathetic and blaming one jobs report or Brexit vote is even worse. You clowns are forcing banks to fire hard-working employees so the banks can remain profitable despite the increasing regulation and capital controls. GET OFF THEIR BACKS AND LET THE BANKS LEND MORE... STOP BEING THE REASON THIS ECONOMY CANNOT GROW. That's right, the Fed is the reason our economy cannot grow. Markets have no trust in Yellen or the FOMC and neither do businesses. It's very clear the FOMC won't raise interest rates even a pathetic 1/4 of 1 percent in July. Everyone knows the FOMC is too weak-minded and certainly won't raise in November. FOMC probably won't raise in September either for political reasons. So sad... the utter stupidity here. Clearly, most of the people who voted for Bernie Sanders and Donald Trump believe that nationalism would be a better policy than globalization. This is the change they are voting to see. Monetary and banking policy that helps increase manufacturing in our economy to increase it from 27% of GDP closer to 50% will increase the wealth of our nation. Fiscal stimulus invested in infrastructure like fixing the interstate highways and bridges and expanding the system to have 3 lanes on each side with no trucks in the left lane will help the economy grow. Redesign of airports like O'Hare to be distributed in nature instead of centralized will improve productivity and reduce risk of security bottlenecks and opportunities for mass murder. Investment in two way high speed under ground rail magnetic levitation vehicles will help US compete with economies in Japan, China and Europe. Laws or tax incentives that will balance out wage increased with profits and price increases will give the poor, working class and middle class the income they need to sustain themselves and grow the economy even more. 7/7/2016 13:35	Board Members	NULL	NULL						Hurst	Texas	76054	UNITED STATES	The time is right for the FED to sell debt they hold to meet the demand and unwind itself from the liberal monetary stimulus programs it adopted when the Congress failed to use fiscal spending to stimulate the economy. The time will be right for the FED to increase interest rates after the November election. Recession cannot be avoided. Conservative budgets by businesses and corporations to build cash flow due to the uncertainty about federal budgets and tax policies after a two term election combined with other economic factors like the EU debt problems and BREXIT vote will weigh heavily on the US economy. A Clinton victory will probably mean a shallow recession and a Trump victory will probably mean a deep recession. The FED would be wise to divest itself of liberal monetary stimulus policies now while it can and increase interest rates after the election as much as possible and within reason until the recession starts. Then the FED can see whether Congress will use fiscal stimulus spending to help the economy out of the next recession or whether they will remain unable to act, at which time the FED may have some of the tools it needs to attempt to use liberal monetary policies and interest rates to try to stimulate economic growth. Round and round we go. C'est la vie. Such is life.

The problem is that this explicit policy of boosting asset prices has delivered a disproportionate benefit to the rich, who control a large share of the assets. At the same time, the aggressive monetary stimulus has failed to ignite a robust global economic recovery. As a result, even though the developed countries have seen an improvement in their labour markets, there's been virtually no growth in real wages (after taking account of inflation). Even worse, the plunge in long-term interest rates engineered by the central banks has depressed investment returns, making it increasingly difficult for people to save enough money to enjoy a comfortable retirement." http://www.afr.com/opinion/columnists/central-banks-blamed-for-rising-inequality-brexite-and-donald-trump-20160726-gqe1o

Under Greenspand, and even with him noting his famous quote of "irrational exuberance", that was the time interest rates should have gone up steadily and at a faster rate than Greenspan was doing. Had he a close eye on what was going on, including the ponzi scheme involved with Bill Clinton getting elected and making promises to the top executives in Silicon Valley of letting in a huge wave of H1-B visa holders, and which he made true to his promise, there was a scattered, disproportionate housing inflation already underway, along with some wage inflation, and so besides the asset class of equities, these two big areas should have been big warning signs to have acted EARLIER to raise interest rates and if done with diligence, the interest rate would not have to be raised ultimately to as much versus waiting until a small problem became a bigger one. So look what happened, Greenspan allowed the big internet stock bubble to get out of hand and eventually it had to crash. Under ordinary circumstances we should have had a crash in 2016, or 2015, or 2014, or 2013, or 2012, or with Fed policies not so egregiously harmful, we could have stayed around the 2009 levels for a few years without any need for a crash

There is a suggestion that rates rise with the election of Secretary Clinton, and act in opposite with the election of Mr. Trump. I believe the FED should be driven by matters of the economy, monetary policy and economic direction. Once a person is elected president, discussions are critical but so is independence. I am hopeful the suggestion I mention is the opinion of someone who is seeking to create a wedge in the election process. This contested race needs no further amplification in my opinion. Thank you. REPUBLICANS ARE A DISEASE!
														Dear Sir/Madam: Please raise interest rates so we of the middle class can make some money in our bank accounts. Keeping the rates so low or near zero benefits no one but the very, very well to do. We do not benefit whatsoever, no matter what you think. I know for we have had to live with no earnings from our bank for years now. What you are doing benefits Ms. Clinton. she can pretend the economy is booming when it is not, so she can make her points against Mr. Trump. This is political. Stop it!!!!!! WE need help. We cannot participate in the market to buy stocks at P/E's 50 times. This is nonsense. XOM for instance has a P/E of 35 when it is normally 12. I am not going to buy stocks. at such levels. When they correct we get wiped out and those who can afford to buy insurance, make out fine. So we are forced to take risks and they make the money. How nice for you and the Demon-crats. I am tired of this as we all are and some day the story of this market fiasco will come out and people will understand just what has been done to us. You are DESTROYING THE MIDDLE CLASS!!! LEVEL THE PLAYING FIELD FOR EVERYONE SO EARNINGS FROM COMPANIES MEAN SOMETHING. Help the middle class for once and raise rates so the companies cannot cheat by buying back their own stock making the market look so good and Ms. Clinton too. She does not deserve this special treatment you are according her. (b) (6)

8/19/2016 15:15	Staff Group	Community affairs	NULL							Stamford	Connecticut	6902	UNITED STATES	In the coming weeks it will be reported in the press that Hillary Clinton accepted a campaign contribution from George Soros. The contribution was given with the promise that a meeting could be brokered between Soros and Janet Yellen. In addition, e-mails from Clinton to Yellen will be released that show Clinton instructing Yellen to make no adjustments to interest rate policy throughout the 2016 election cycle. Does the Federal Reserve, or Janet Yellen herself, wish to comment on these claims? Furthermore, does the Federal Reserve wish to deny the existence of such communications? Thank you, (b) (6)
